Mission City Community Fund is a 501(c)(3) tax-exempt, non-profit organization with an all-volunteer board of directors. Because we have no paid staff, the money MCCF raises goes directly to the organizations we support. When you donate to MCCF, you can be confident that local organizations get maximum benefit. Every dollar of our net proceeds go directly to projects and programs in the Santa Clara and Silicon Valley community.

In 1986, a group of concerned Santa Clara citizens formed the Mission City Community Fund in response to shrinking federal financial support for much-needed community programs. Our objective is simple: enriching the quality of life for our community residents. We focus on five areas of giving: social services, education, health care, theater and arts, and the environment.

Over the years, MCCF has supported hundreds of non-profit organizations throughout Silicon Valley and enabled them to expand and enhance their services for our citizens. More recently, in response to Covid-19, Mission City Community Fund pivoted and quickly raised additional funds to support local agencies that were addressing the food insecurity issues so many are facing within our community. We gave to Hunger at Home, Meals on Wheels, and the Healthy Meals Program that was launched by the City of Santa Clara. A strong desire to help those in need was the impetus for establishing the MCCF and that remains our objective. With your help, we will continue to strive in meeting the needs of our community during these extremely challenging times.

Please join us for our annual fundraiser as we continue our efforts to benefit the Santa Clara and Silicon Valley community.

Mission City Community Fund’s Five Areas of Giving

Education
Grants in the educational field support projects sponsored by community school districts and libraries, enriching educational and extracurricular opportunities for students of all ages, backgrounds and needs.

Environment
Grants in the environmental field are designed to encourage and innovate practical approaches to preserving and enhancing the environment.

Health Care
Grants in the health care field are designed to encourage both the public and private sectors to maintain the current level of health services and to initiate new services that respond to unmet needs. Included in this field are medical services, mental health programs, rehabilitation services, and care for the terminally ill. Organizations or individuals providing services, as well as health education and prevention services, may be considered.

Social Services
Grants in the social services field are designed to encourage and support programs that help meet the basic human needs of citizens in the City of Santa Clara and Silicon Valley. Agencies or individuals working with the physically or developmentally disabled, seniors, youth, crime victims, and economically disadvantaged clients are considered.

Theater & Arts
Grants in theater & arts fields are designed to encourage interest and expression in a broad range of artistic pursuits, including theater, dance, music, literature, and the visual arts.

“We are deeply grateful to the Mission City Community Fund leadership team for their commitment to this new and equitable model of collegiate education for adults with special needs. We have used Mission City’s investments over the years to build out our Academic & Resource Library, to install a professional art gallery in the Parkmoor building hallway, and to invest in some much needed portable wall dividers and storage bins as more and more students find their way to this innovative and lifelong educational experience!”

MCCF Non-Profit of the Year
Sunnyvale Community Services

Founded in 1970, Sunnyvale Community Services (SCS) is an independent, nonprofit emergency assistance agency in the heart of Silicon Valley. SCS’s mission is to prevent homelessness and hunger in our local community. SCS is designated as one of seven Emergency Assistance Network (EAN) agencies who together are the safety net for all zip codes in Santa Clara County. Our agency assists residents in all zip codes in Sunnyvale and the neighboring Alviso community in San Jose, as well as homeless persons including Veterans throughout Santa Clara County.

The goal of SCS is that all residents are safely and stably housed with food on the table, and with access to medical care and services. SCS addresses immediate critical needs to help low-income families and seniors who are often one bill away from hunger and homelessness. Over 2,500 community volunteers enable SCS to keep our costs low. SCS serves every eligible client who comes for help, never turning anyone away due to lack of resources, even though that has become increasingly challenging with the growing need.

SCS assists low-income individuals with financial assistance for rent, security deposits, utility bills, car repairs, and gift cards for critical family needs. Our efficient professional staff responds within 24-48 hours when a client is facing eviction, supplying emergency food and referrals and treating their financial emergencies effectively.

In addition to financial aid, SCS distributes over 900 tons of nutritious food and produce year-round, including donations from Second Harvest of Silicon Valley as well as purchased healthy foods including milk and cereal. Food distribution programs include Produce Mondays, Monthly Food Distributions for families and seniors, Weekend School Food, and more.

In recent years, SCS has built a strong foundation in comprehensive case management, health and wellness programs, work experience programs for homeless individuals, housing assistance for homeless Veterans, and dozens of cross-agency partnerships. The organization’s Board and staff work together to innovate and measure what works to help low-income persons stabilize and move to health and prosperity.

Past MCCF Non-Profit of the Year 2019
Sean M. Walsh K-9 Memorial Foundation

All his life, Sean Walsh had a dream. He aspired to be a police officer and K-9 handler. Sean worked diligently towards his aspirations, becoming an Explorer Cadet with the Santa Clara Sheriff Department (SCSD) and with the Santa Clara Police Department (SCPD), and eventually becoming a Police Specialist with the California National Guard Military. Unfortunately, Sean was not able to live to see his dream fulfilled, losing his life while serving in Afghanistan. He was just 21 years old.

Inspired by Sean’s dream and to honor his memory, the Sean M. Walsh K-9 Memorial Foundation was established to provide grants to law enforcement agencies in need of financial support to establish and maintain their K-9 teams. The organization was established in December of 2011 and received non-profit status in 2012, making it possible to donate our first grant for a K-9 in April of 2012.

Our first grant recipient was the Santa Clara Police Department and the 4th K-9 we donated went to the Santa Clara Sheriff Department. To date we have donated grants resulting in the purchase of 26 K-9s, including five to SCPD and three to SCSD, as well as grants to other departments in Santa Clara County. We’ve assisted six additional departments with equipment purchases and funds for training. We also provide an annual scholarship to the winner of the Sean M. Walsh Award in the Silicon Valley/Monterey Explorer Program.

In 2017, we partnered with the Santa Clara Sheriff Department to lend support to their “Santa Paws” event. Started by Sheriff Dept (and Sean’s K-9’s) Handlers SGT Jones and SGT Monroe, Santa Paws provides one age appropriate gift to low income children around Christmas at an annual event in East San Jose. In 2019, we hope to make this a National Event involving departments that are now considered “Sean’s K-9s” family members.
